Munich. Flexibility and reliable performance – this is what most people want from their vacuum cleaner. Therefore, it is hardly surprising that cordless devices, which are also lightweight and user-friendly, are particularly popular. And for good reason – they are the ideal appliance for a quick everyday clean. While people often used to do housework on a specific cleaning day, most of today's consumers carry out tasks, such as vacuuming, spontaneously, as required. The new cordless upright vacuum cleaners fulfil this need thanks to their compact design and flexibility.

Long run time, always ready to clean and quickly accessible

The limited battery life of cordless upright vacuum cleaners used to deter many people from buying them. With the Unlimited – a vacuum cleaner with a prolonged battery life – Bosch has solved this problem in two respects. Firstly, the new cordless vacuum cleaner has a second battery and quick charger (the premium version comes delivered with an additional battery and quick charger). It takes around an hour to fully charge the battery; this is enough time to quickly clean your home or car in the meantime.

Secondly, the Unlimited makes use of the popular and proven battery system from Bosch Home & Garden – the 18-volt Power For ALL system. Specifically, this means one battery can be charged while the second battery or a battery from another Bosch device is being used.

This means the Unlimited model can be used at virtually any time!

Cleanliness on all levels: clean hard-to-reach places easily and precisely

While the smart battery system is a real selling point, this is not all the Unlimited model from Bosch has to offer. Its slim and lightweight design ensures it is easy to use, and the specific vacuum attachments make it easy to reach under chairs, between car seats and into sofa crevices. The long, flexible nozzle also makes it easy to clean high ceilings and hard-to-reach corners between walls and bookshelves. The All Floor HighPower brush lets you clean floors quickly and easily. Say goodbye to spider webs and dust bunnies!

As is the case for the cordless vacuum cleaners in the Athlet range, you won't have to hide the Unlimited away in a cupboard. Thanks to its elegant design, it also looks great as a living room or kitchen feature.

Powerful performance for perfect results

The idea that rechargeable vacuum cleaners only have limited suction is a misconception when it comes to the new generation of cordless vacuum cleaners! The Unlimited has the latest motor technology – the DigitalSpin Motor. The vacuum cleaner is also equipped with a practical floor nozzle for thorough floor cleaning. The motorised AllFloor HighPower brush operates at approximately 5,000 revs per minute, so it achieves thorough cleaning results on all types of floors.

Simplified handling and fast cleaning

Another benefit of the Unlimited is evident once cleaning is finished. The dust box can be removed easily and emptied with almost no contact with the dust. Fine dust particles can be removed from the filter by rotating it slightly. As with the Athlet model, the brush can be detached from the nozzle in one easy step, so that hairs and other residue can also be removed.
